Fr. Kevin’s Reflection

Well, I am on vacation as this reflection is being read. (I hope I am having a good vacation and recreating this world.) Well, while I am gone ... I want to continue the reflection on why we do what we do when we worship God together and apart.

If you look at this week’s Gospel ... Jesus makes this very point. As being the Body of Christ, we are united as a body and as individuals who make the body work (or can cause a cancer to the body). Jesus (and St. Paul writing to the Romans) tells how we are to care (and correct) each other in love. Ahh ... love ... the most mishandled word in the English language. We use it to mean everything! As Americans, we could learn from the rest of the world. Are you aware that in the Italian language there are over 1000 different words of endearment ... so many ... that it often impossible to properly translate them into English. Too often, they are translated (or miss the translation) as: “love”. This is why St. Paul ... when referring to Christian love ... used an out of use word that even the Romans and Greeks forgot to use: AGAPE.

But, once again, what does all this mean for our reflection? First, it becomes clear that worship and honoring of God and saints (seen in its true breadth and depth) goes beyond the action of the liturgy. Ultimately, (as St. Paul and Jesus speaks to us in this week’s reading) worship embraces the ordering of the whole of human life. Man becomes glory for God ... puts God ... so to speak, into the light (and that is what worship is), when a person lives by ... looking toward God. On the other hand, as I pointed out two weeks ago ... it is also true that law and ethics do not hold together when they are not anchored in the liturgical center and inspired by it.

What kind of reality, then, do we find in the liturgy? One answer we can now say this: The man who puts to one side any consideration of the reality of God is a realist only in appearance. He is removing himself from the One in whom we “live and move and have our being” (cf. Acts 17:28). It is only when man’s relationship with God is right that all of his other relationships—his relationships with his fellowmen, his dealings with the rest of creation—can be in good order. (This is the point of this week’s readings).

As we have reflected on in the past, law is essential for freedom and community; worship—that is, the right way to relate to God—is, for its part, essential for law. We can now broaden the insight by taking a further step. Worship ... that is, the right kind of worship (as God wants us to worship Him) ... a kind that is in a relationship with God ... essential for the right kind of human existence in the world. It is so precisely set up ... because it reaches beyond everyday life. Worship gives us a share in heaven’s mode of existence, in the world of God ... and allows light to fall from that divine world into ours. In this sense, worship—as we said when we were discussing play—has the character of anticipation. It lays hold in advance of a more perfect life and ... when practiced ... gives our present life its proper measure. A life without such anticipation ... a life no longer opened up to heaven ... would be empty (a leaden (burden) life). That is why there are (in reality) no societies altogether lacking in worship and honor. Even the decidedly atheistic, materialistic systems create their own forms of hero worship (though, of course, they can only be an illusion and strive in vain, by bombastic trumpeting, to conceal their nothingness). Maybe this is why some in our society today seek to tear down the saints like St. Junípero Serra of California or personages such as Christopher Columbus and put emptiness in their place.

Following the Council Meeting on August 31 the Council along with Fr Kevin wished to bring to your attention some matters concerning parishioners.

◇ The current structures of St Augustine built in 1918 and Holy Trinity built in 1968 are reaching milestone dates. With the approaching 2018 year, it was decided to host a combined celebration of 50 yrs and 100 yrs. It was suggested a Committee be formed to plan out an event. Along with an updated Parish Directory. Anyone willing to be on this committee please contact the rectory office or Teresa G, Chad H, Jeanne B, Michael S, Judy W or Dan Lown. Looking to have committee by mid October if possible.

◇ Council reviewed proposed options for the steps in the front of St. Augustine. Fr Kevin and Council are needing your input regarding the options and what best suits the needs of the members of the parish. There are architectural designs for the various options along with approximate construction costs. It will be put to a vote of the parishioners sometime within the next couple of months.
