Just a bit from Fr. Schmidt

Our second reading at Sunday Mass for the past few weeks has been coming from the Letter to the Hebrews. I once taught a course on this book of the New Testament while reading a commentary called A Different Priest by Albert Vanhoye, S.J. When other people noticed the title of the book, they often wondered if it was a book about me. Having met many other priests, I can assure you that I'm not the only different priest in the Diocese of Sioux Falls. Like the first Apostles of Jesus, our priests all have different personalities, strengths, weaknesses, and areas of interest. Recently, I've also been reflecting on the meaning of the word holy or sacred. Sacred can simply mean "set apart, distinct, different."

I'm not convinced, yet, that the reason our priests are so different is because they're so holy, but there has always been an instinct to set aside for God special places, things, and even people. Our church buildings are sacred places, and the vestments and vessels used at Mass are probably pretty different from the cups and plates you use at home. Priests and religious are also considered sacred persons, consecrated to God. That's why they typically wear a distinctive outfit.

Over the years I've also enjoyed getting acquainted with other sacred elements from our rich Catholic tradition. In the Latin of the Roman Rite, we have an entire language that is sacred, very different from what we usually hear on the street, but connecting us with centuries of Catholics who have gone before us, back even to the ancient Roman Church. In Gregorian chant, we have a sacred musical tradition suited especially to the one musical instrument that God Himself created, the human voice. And the moments of sacred silence during Mass should allow us to consider the awesome love of God that is far beyond what any human words can express.

These signs stand in sharp contrast to our regular experiences of shooting the breeze, listening to the radio, and having our lives filled with noise. The sacredness of the liturgy is meant to clue us in to the fact that something life-changing and earth-shattering is happening whenever we encounter Jesus in the sacraments. At every Mass, His perfect sacrifice that saves the world is renewed, and we receive the New Man, the Risen Christ who lives forever. In the sacred liturgy, we are joined to the angels and saints in heaven, where God has prepared for us what no eye has seen nor ear heard, that which is beyond the imagination of our hearts (cf. 1 Corinthians 2:9).

The sacred and different can and should also challenge us. St. Peter puts it very simply: As He who called you is holy, be holy yourselves in every aspect of your conduct (1 Peter 1:15). The Second Vatican Council reminds us that holiness is the vocation of every Christian, not just of priests and religious. How is God calling us to live differently than what we see in the currents of society, to pray differently, to suffer differently? "You are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people of His own, so that you may announce the praises of Him who called you out of darkness into His wonderful light" (1 Peter 2:9).

Be different as Christ is different. Be holy.

Fr. Schmidt
